

The four astronauts on this mission are: Jared Isaacman, Sian Proctor, Hayley Arceneaux, and Christopher Sembroski.

The Falcon 9 first stage from this launch will land 8-1/2 minutes after launch on an autonomous landing barge 400 miles in the Atlantic Ocean due East of Cape Canaveral. The landing will be too far from launch viewing sites to be seen, though an upper atmosphere retro fire to slow the booster's return through the atmosphere may be visible about 7 minutes after launch.

Earth as this flight will.

Inspiration 4 is the first rocket launch carrying civilian passengers to simply orbit the Earth as tourists. The Falcon 9 booster rocket will launch a Crew Dragon spacecraft from Launch Complex 39A at the Kennedy Space Center. About 2-1/2 minutes after launch is MECO - Main Engine Cutoff, followed by the release of the second stage which will ignite and push the Dragon capsule into Earth orbit. While recent rocket flights of Richard Branson and Jeff Bezos went to Space with civilian companions, they were simply Up and Down sub-orbital flights which did not orbit the Earth as this flight will.
