NROL-108

Launching on an Falcon 9 Rocket

2018-12-19, 9:00 amEST

The NROL-108 launch for the National Reconnaissance Office will utilize a Falcon 9 booster rocket to reach orbit.
The rocket will carry a classified National Reconnaissance Office payload, with the first stage booster expected to return to Landing Zone 1 (the former Launch Complex 13) at the Cape Canaveral Space Force Station within nine minutes of launch.
As the first stage returns through the atmosphere, sonic booms are expected due to it travelling faster than sound, they will probably arrive at your viewing location after the booster has landed.
