When Ozzie Osband was in the army stationed in Germany, he attended a soccer match and realized that soccer was "the world's game". When the FIFA World Cup came to Orlando Florida in 1994 he asked himself "What American is going to volunteer for such a thing. That's when he stepped up, and as a licensed ham radio operator, became the Chief Radio Operator at The Citrus Bowl, Orlando's venue for the tournament.

Since then, the Orlando City Soccer Club came to town, and he volunteered with them for the first two years of the club's existance. Then he retired on his Social Security, and could no longer afford the gas (let alone the tickets) to come in from Titusville, 40 miles away. To keep his hand in, however, he developed the online schedules that put all the teams of the Orlando City Soccer Club on one web page, and with a clever twist, allows the visitor to tap the "Next Match" tag at the top of the page to jump to the next match on the schedule before Bookmarking the page. This means that the user need only tap the Bookmark to get right to the information they need NOW! The date and time of the next match.

Now Ozzie is ready and willing to make these Sports Schedule pages for YOUR team, of any sport. Scores will be updated by Noon the day after any event, although arrangements can be made for updating after every goal/inning/quarter, etc. Just give him a call at 321-Liftoff (321-543-8633) and he'll be happy to discuss your team's needs. Did we mention that Ozzie also follows Florida rocket launches? Did we have to with a phone number like that 321-Liftoff?
