Launching on an Falcon 9 Rocket

2018-12-13, 11:22 amEDT

Sirius XM is a Satellite Radio content provider, with ad-free music, plus talk, sports, comedy and more. The SXM-7 satellite will operate in the S-band spectrum from a geosatellite orbit. The satellite will generate more than 20-kW of power and will have a large unfurlable antenna reflector, which enables it to broadcast to radios without the need for large dish-type antennas on the ground. SXM-7 will ensure continuous and reliable delivery of SiriusXM's audio entertainment and data services to more than 30.6 million subscribers across North America.

It will launch on a Falcon 9 rocket booster, with the 1st stage landing on a barge in the Atlantic Ocean 400 miles due East of The Cape, too far from launch viewing sites to be seen.
